

Rethinking Classroom Helpers: When Jobs Fit the Child, Not the Chart

A fresh look at classroom jobs! Dig into a conversation about why the chart alone isn't enough, and how curiosity, flexibility, and real observation can lead to roles that truly work for your group.

Easing First Day Jitters

Our friends at NAEYC share warm and practical ideas for building routines and relationships that help children feel safe, seen, and ready to engage from the very beginning.

Make Your Own Job Chart

This flexible template is designed to be personalized. Add your own job titles, phrases, and photos. Print, laminate, pop it in a pocket chart, or use with hook & loop sticker dots.

Wheels Up, Conference Crew!

Looking to connect, recharge, and grow? Zero to Three has curated a list of 2025's most inspiring early childhood conferences for educators, leaders, and advocates.

Becker's Classroom Lists & Correlations

From set-up to refresh, our curated product lists make it easy to plan, prep, and stock your classroom. Aligned with curricula and quality tools, so you're always ready to roll!

What You Notice, Grows: Observation as a Leadership Practice

Teachers are always observing and adjusting - it's at the heart of responsive teaching. What happens when leaders take the same approach? This post offers a reflection on presence, trust, and the power of paying attention to what matters most.